World Platinum Investment Council (WPIC) to expand global platinum investment choices with launch of new bullion coin custodial certificates

- Exclusive agreement between WPIC and Rand Merchant Bank (RMB) will extend global reach of platinum bullion coin custodial certificates
- Innovative product partnering supports WPIC's mission to stimulate investor demand for physical platinum

London, 10 December 2015: The World Platinum Investment Council (WPIC) and Rand Merchant Bank (RMB) have today entered into an exclusive agreement to increase the global availability of listed platinum Bullion Coin Custodial Certificates to retail and institutional investors. The custodial certificates will provide a new safe, secure and cost-effective method of purchasing and owning platinum.

The move follows RMB's successful listing on South Africa's JSE of the world's first dedicated gold coin custodial certificates in November 2014, the Krugerrand Custodial Certificates (KCC). RMB has granted the WPIC sole rights to identify and appoint partner licensees outside of South Africa capable of providing listed Bullion Coin Custodial Certificates to investors.

Platinum-backed certificates will increase the platinum investment choices for retail and institutional investors to include legal tender bullion coins without necessarily taking delivery.

Marcus Grubb, Director of Market Development at WPIC said, "We are delighted to be entering this exclusive partnership with Rand Merchant Bank and we look forward to working with partners around the world to provide access to this innovative concept. This is the first in a series of new initiatives that will be announced by the WPIC, all with the intention of stimulating investor demand for physical platinum and increasing the number and type of platinum investment opportunities open to investors.”

Ebrahim Patel, Commodities Specialist at RMB added, “RMB has pioneered a number of ground-breaking precious metal investment products, and the agreement with the WPIC will ensure that the next generation of bullion investment products reaches a global audience.”

The gold KCCs have already achieved notable success with over 97,000 KCCs issued since their launch. The WPIC hopes to bring significant investment demand to the global platinum market with this new product.
